3. In the following lists, those items of goods not precisely specified, as "other metals", refer to specific kinds of goods listed under this rubric in the Czechoslovak Customs Registry (Ceskoslovensky celni ray). Where an item is listed here as goods belonging to a numbered group, as Group XLVII, the specific kind of goods referred to may be found listed under this group number in the Czechoslovak Customs Registry. The sums of money listed below may be considered accurate and final, but the quantities of goods may vary according to the qualities of goods actually bought. Where two or more kinds of goods are listed under one item, the sum of money allocated for these kinds of goods will be apportioned between them according to need.

> The most important of these items are pyrites, metals, and electrodes. Taken by country, these imports break down as follows:

Albania 5,000 tons of pyrites with a total value of 4,250,000 Kcs. and small quantities of clays and chemical auxiliary substances.

Bulgaria 25,000 tons of pyrites with a total value of 21,250,000 Kcs., 30 tons of magnesite, and some clays, others, and chemical auxiliary substances.

Some clays and ochers for production of mineral dyes, out Hungary of which 1,000 tons of other are for production of bleach, and 300 tons of bauxite, to be used for the production of earthenware. In addition, some chemical auxiliary substances.

Eastern Germany 1,000 tons of plaster with a total value of 1,835,000 Kcs., 3,600 tons of chalk with a total value of 4,500,000 Kcs., and the major part of the chemical auxiliary substances imported from these countries.

Poland Zinc and zinc powder with a total value of 55,000,000 Kcs., 2,000 tons of carbon electrodes with a total value of 10,000,000 Kcs., clays to be used for purifying purposes in gas factories, hard coal tar, and chemical auxiliary substances.

30,000 tons of pyrites with a total value of 25,500,000 Kcs., paraffin (12,500,000 Kcs.), lead (19,800,000 Kcs.); other metals (10,000,000 Kcs.), arsenic (450,000 Kcs.), Rumania and some tartar and chemical auxiliary substances.

China China offered to sell Czechoslovakia various raw materials such as sulphur, chromium ore, and tungsten, but no agreement was signed because of the difficulties of transport.
